Representatives from National Counter Terrorism Policing will be present to give a briefing and provide advice to members of the General Synod about their work with communities across the country and how this impacts on the church and faith communities. The aim will be to develop a stronger working relationship in order to work closer together in protecting people from the terrorist threat.

There will be the opportunity to ask questions to help further develop our own readiness to deal with the issues of terrorism in our communities.

Room: Harvey Goodwin Suite

Date: Saturday 23rd Feb.

Time: 1pm

All members of Synod are invited to attend.
