We support the people who care for our churches and cathedrals.

We are responsible for the largest set of historic buildings in the country.
What do we do?

We show that churches are active, relevant and worthy of support. And we help churches and cathedrals get the best out of their buildings.

Our committees

Church Buildings Council
We work with and advise churches and dioceses on care, conservation and development of church buildings. We work with government to advise on policies that affect church buildings.

Cathedrals Fabric Commission for England
We make decisions on applications for certain types of work to cathedrals in England. The Care of Cathedral Measure 2011 sets out our powers and duties.

Conservation Committees
Our committees are made up of leading experts in heritage conservation, architecture, art history and archaeology.

Our committee members give us advice on conservation of church historic interiors, awarding of conservation grants and policy. We ensure that your project benefits from their expert advice.

Statutory Advisory Committee on Closed & Closing Churches
We give guidance about the heritage of closed and closing churches.

We are a statutory body giving advice about the future of churches no longer needed for worship. We advise if the building is appropriate for another use, if it is so special it should be kept as it is, or if it can be demolished.
