

The Domestic Abuse Bill returned to the Commons for its second reading this week, a reminder to think and act for those who during the COVID-19 restrictions are in lockdown with the very people who may cause them harm. The Bishop of London, Sarah Mullally, highlights the issue in her latest blog.

Source URL: <https://www.churchofengland.org/safeguarding/overview/news-and-views/youarenotalone>