

Emily Finch, a youth and community worker from York, speaks about how she decided to buy a double decker bus with the savings her parents put aside for her, to run detached youth work for churches.

The Bus Stop runs youth work, a café and mum's groups where communities need help. Whilst most of those that come along aren't connected with church, Emily encourages them to try praying at the end of the sessions. She's seen amazing responses from teenagers as they connect with prayer and see its transforming power.
