

Ludovic Claude, an impact investment banker, speaks about joining the Community of St Anselm which is a monastic style community set up by the Archbishop of Canterbury for young Christians. It asks them to spend a transformative year of prayer in community with others and is based at Lambeth Palace.

Ludovic explains how the community allows him to help change the culture found in banking through prayer and worship. He says that not everyone is called to be a priest and he sees his vocation as having a job outside of the church where he can help bring about change.
