

In this video Sarah Mullaly, Bishop of London talks with Jasmine about their shared calling to nursing and the way in which Jasmine's leadership in nursing emerged as a clear vocation. They also talk about the role of faith in this very challenging profession and how now, in retirement, new opportunities for calling are emerging for Jasmine.

This video is one of the stories from the Diocese of London's Frontline Fridays series for their Ambassadors Network. These encourage church leaders to visit people in their workplaces (where possible nowadays of course). You can find more at the Ambassadors section of their website
