

I am an Ordained Black African woman minister in the Church of England and I serve as Rector of five Churches.

My sense to a call to ordained ministry started in 2008 and I was ordained in 2016. In my training I have been in both town and rural Churches, Evangelical and Catholic traditions. I have worked with various Priests including those from different ethnic groups. I am a member of the Zimbabwe National Fellowship in UK and currently the first Chairperson of Zimbabwe Church of England Women Clergy group. I love God. I believe in prayer and I love walking besides people in their journeys, men or women from different Ethnic groups. I have encouraged so many people in their different vocations and roles. I believe that there is a giant in every person. I speak English and Shona.
