

The National Church Governance Project Board met to update on the Governance Review and to complete a review of its risk register.

The Project Board was established in January 2022 to take forward the work of the Governance Review Group on governance and structure of the National Church Institutions.

The Board considered proposals for the structure and potential board composition of a consolidated Church of England National Services (CENS) which will go forward for discussion by the Archbishops' Council and Church Commissioners.

The Board also looked at committee structure, with a view to streamlining the number of Committees, and discussed governance and advisory committees, noting that further work is needed on this area.

A subsequent meeting with the Synodical Reference Group also took place.

The next meeting is scheduled for later in October 2022.
