

Thank you so much for reaching out to the Support Scheme.

The Archbishops' Council has established an Interim Support Scheme to improve the Church's response to current and non-current survivors of Church-related abuse. This Scheme is part of the Church's recognition that harm has been caused by both that abuse itself, and the Church's responses to survivors.

This Scheme is not intended to provide compensation or restitution to survivors, nor is it a redress scheme. The Scheme is intended to give immediate help and support to survivors whose life circumstances are significantly affected by the abuse suffered, and the response to it. The Scheme is designed to address immediate and urgent needs that help in the short-term to put the survivor's life back on track.
