Engaging with other Churches in Europe

Many of our activities in Europe are focused on:

- Linking with Churches through the Diocese in Europe
- Having an ongoing membership of the Conference of European Churches
- Developing informal conversations with new Churches across the continent.
- Creating and maintaining formal agreements with partner Churches including:

The Porvoo Agreement

Signed in 1996, the Porvoo Agreement commits us to sharing a common life in mission and service with a number of Lutheran and Anglican Churches who are in communion with one another.

The Meissen Agreement

Signed in 1991, the Meissen Agreements commits us to journey towards greater unity and closer fellowship. This is a formal relationship between the Evangelical Church in Germany and the Church of England.

Learn more

In the agreement the two Churches recognised each other as Churches belonging to the One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church of Jesus Christ. They committed themselves to work together in closer fellowship. More information about the agreement is set out in the Meissen Common Statement: On the Way to Visible Unity. Including the joint declaration known as the Meissen Declaration which was approved by the General Synod of the Church of England, the EKD and the Federation of the Evangelical Churches in the German Democratic Republic.

A Commission from the two Churches meets annually in September, either in Germany or England, to make sure that the agreement has practical actions in the life of the churches.

In 2016 when the two Churches celebrated 25 years of the Meissen Agreement, the Archbishop of Canterbury Justin Welby said:

“One of the goals of Meissen is the full visible unity between our Churches. This goal has allowed the development of significant relationships between our two Churches at every level and remains a model for other ecumenical agreements. The remembrance of that initiative which led to the signing of the Agreement is an important reminder that the churches are at times called to set the agenda and take the lead in matters of unity and reconciliation. Over the years parishes and dioceses have created vibrant partnerships, and exchanges between them have proved fruitful. Our Churches and individuals have learned to look at their faith and the life of their parish through different eyes. What is currently being experienced between our churches is a programme which could be called 'Mission Interchange'. Our Churches have therefore come a long way, and I am grateful to God for his continuing mercies on this journey.”

The Reuilly Declaration

Signed in 2001 in Canterbury and Paris, the Reuilly Declaration commits us to worship, witness and service together with French Protestant Churches (Lutheran and Reformed).

Our Reuilly Partners:

- The Church of Ireland
- The Scottish Episcopal Church
- The Church in Wales
- The Church of Augsburg Confession of Alsace and Lorraine
- The Reformed Church of Alsace and Lorraine
- The Evangelical Lutheran Church of France
- The Reformed Church of France

The Reuilly Common Statement was an important step forward in the direction of visible unity. It was founded on:

- A common faith
- A common understanding of the nature and purpose of the Church
- A movement towards a common understanding of the apostolicity of the Church and ministry

To continue the conversations which began in 1994, the Reuilly Contact Group meets every two years. As a group they hope to strengthen the relationships between the Anglicans and the French Lutheran and Reformed Churches; and explore practical ways to work together.

Engaging with Churches around the world

- We engage with Churches around the world, through ecumenical organisations such as the World Council of Churches and national Councils of Churches, and through the global ministry of the Archbishop of Canterbury.
- The Archbishop of Canterbury's ministry includes representing the worldwide Anglican Communion in its relationships with other Churches at local, national and international level.
- We are a member of the World Council of Churches, which says the purpose of the fellowship of member churches "is to call one another to visible unity in one faith and in one Eucharistic fellowship, expressed in worship and common life in Christ, through witness and service to the world, and to advance towards that unity in order that the world may believe".
