

LETTERS FOR CREATION

Looking for a creative way to channel your concern for others and the world around you while you're at home?

Join in with Letters for Creation.

What is Letters for Creation?

Letters for Creation invites young people under 30 to reflect on what it means to them to care for the world around us and how they want their voice to be heard in the call for climate justice. This is a creative project that can be done at home and will serve as an opportunity to amplify the voices of young people on the topic of climate justice. Selected letters will be showcased as part of a digital exhibition to be launched later this year, followed by a physical exhibition that will tour the UK and hopefully include COP26, the UN's climate change conference in 2021.

How to take part

'Letters' can take the form of physical letters, but we also welcome creative submissions of any kind, including those from groups. Here are a few ideas to help get you started:

- Poem
- Performance: this could be a song, dance, rap, spoken word, or any other type of performance piece.
- Photo essay: what about documenting changes in creation over a period of time, such as trees getting their leaves?

- Poster/placard: posters and placards are an engaging way for families to work on a letter together.

Apps like Zoom, Tik Tok, and 1SE, among others, are a helpful way to facilitate group videos. If you're editing together a number of videos, make sure those taking part all shoot their video in the same orientation.

Please include the name, age, and location of those contributing to the letter, and bear in mind that selected submissions may be shared widely as part of the exhibition. Please also ensure you have the relevant parental permissions for any under 18s involved and that you are mindful of the usual safeguarding guidelines.

Letters will be reviewed as they come in and should be sent to:

lettersforcreation@churchofengland.org

Please get in touch if you have a physical submission to contribute.
